what you believe in...

"I guess I believe in something when I see or feel the effects:

When it changes something or makes it move. I can tell you for sure that I know believing isn't seeing, but I believe in the wind even though I can't see it. I believe in God because I've seen his work in my life, I've witnessed the effects of prayer. And in the same way I believe in the wind because I can see it move the trees, I can feel it on my face. I think that believing is experiencing."

who believes in you...

"My friends believe in me probably more than anyone. They know me for who I really am and they believe I can do anything if I put my mind to it, and they're not afraid to push me to my limits to get it done. That's what really counts,"

Rachel Kropf, 11

"My family believes in me. My parents believe they can trust me. My sisters believe if I ask for a hug I want it. My brothers believe if they don't do as older brother says, their life will be unpleasant,"

David Meek, 12

"The person that believes in me the most is definitely my mother. It's hard to explain why it means so much to me because we have such a weird relationship. We either agree or we don't; there is no middle ground. Maybe it's our absolute differences in how to handle things and solve our problems," what you love...

"I love water polo because it is a very challenging sport. It is also very aggressive, in a good way. Some say it is like football in the water. I would have to agree with that other than you can use only one hand on the ball and there are goals like in soccer!"

"I love to sing and a couple of years ago I asked for a karaoke machine for Christmas. That was the only thing on my Christmas list. I wanted it so bad. I didn't think that I was going to get it. When it came to Christmas I was so excited. It was Christmas morning and there was one present left. It was for me. I opened it and it was exactly what I asked for. I was so happy. The rest of the day all I did was sing. I was so glad that I got what I wanted."

what makes you smile...

"Something that makes me smile is my friends telling me jokes. Like my friend Nate, he make me smile with everything he says. I smile at the stupid things, things that wouldn't make most people laugh. That is what makes me smile."

Ryan Bunting, 9

"Lots of things make me smile. I laugh a lot, so I'm smiling a lot. Even if I see someone get hurt sometimes I smile and start to giggle, that's pretty sad. It makes me smile when I see other people smile or being just plain stupid. Guys are fun to smile at, too! I'm just a smiley, happy girl, I guess."

"Travel is an amazing thing. I have been fortunate enough to have traveled across the United States, and to Europe. Seeing new cultures and places helps you mature as a person, and it gives you a sense of how large and diverse the world is. In Spain I ate octopus, snails, blood sausage, and other equally interesting foods. I recommend travel to anyone and everyone. Go, see the world," where you have been...

"Since I was a child I have been moving and going places, and mostly, I have found that travel itself is unpleasant, mostly because the places I have been have always been a place that makes me think "Why would anyone live here?" "I've been thinking a lot about being a police officer after graduation. I'm really not sure where I'm going to attend college. I've been looking at a police academy in Gilroy, California. It would be great if I could attend there, because I used to live there and I have many friends and family who would be very helpful. But who knows, things could change by the end of the year."

Abby Mance, 12

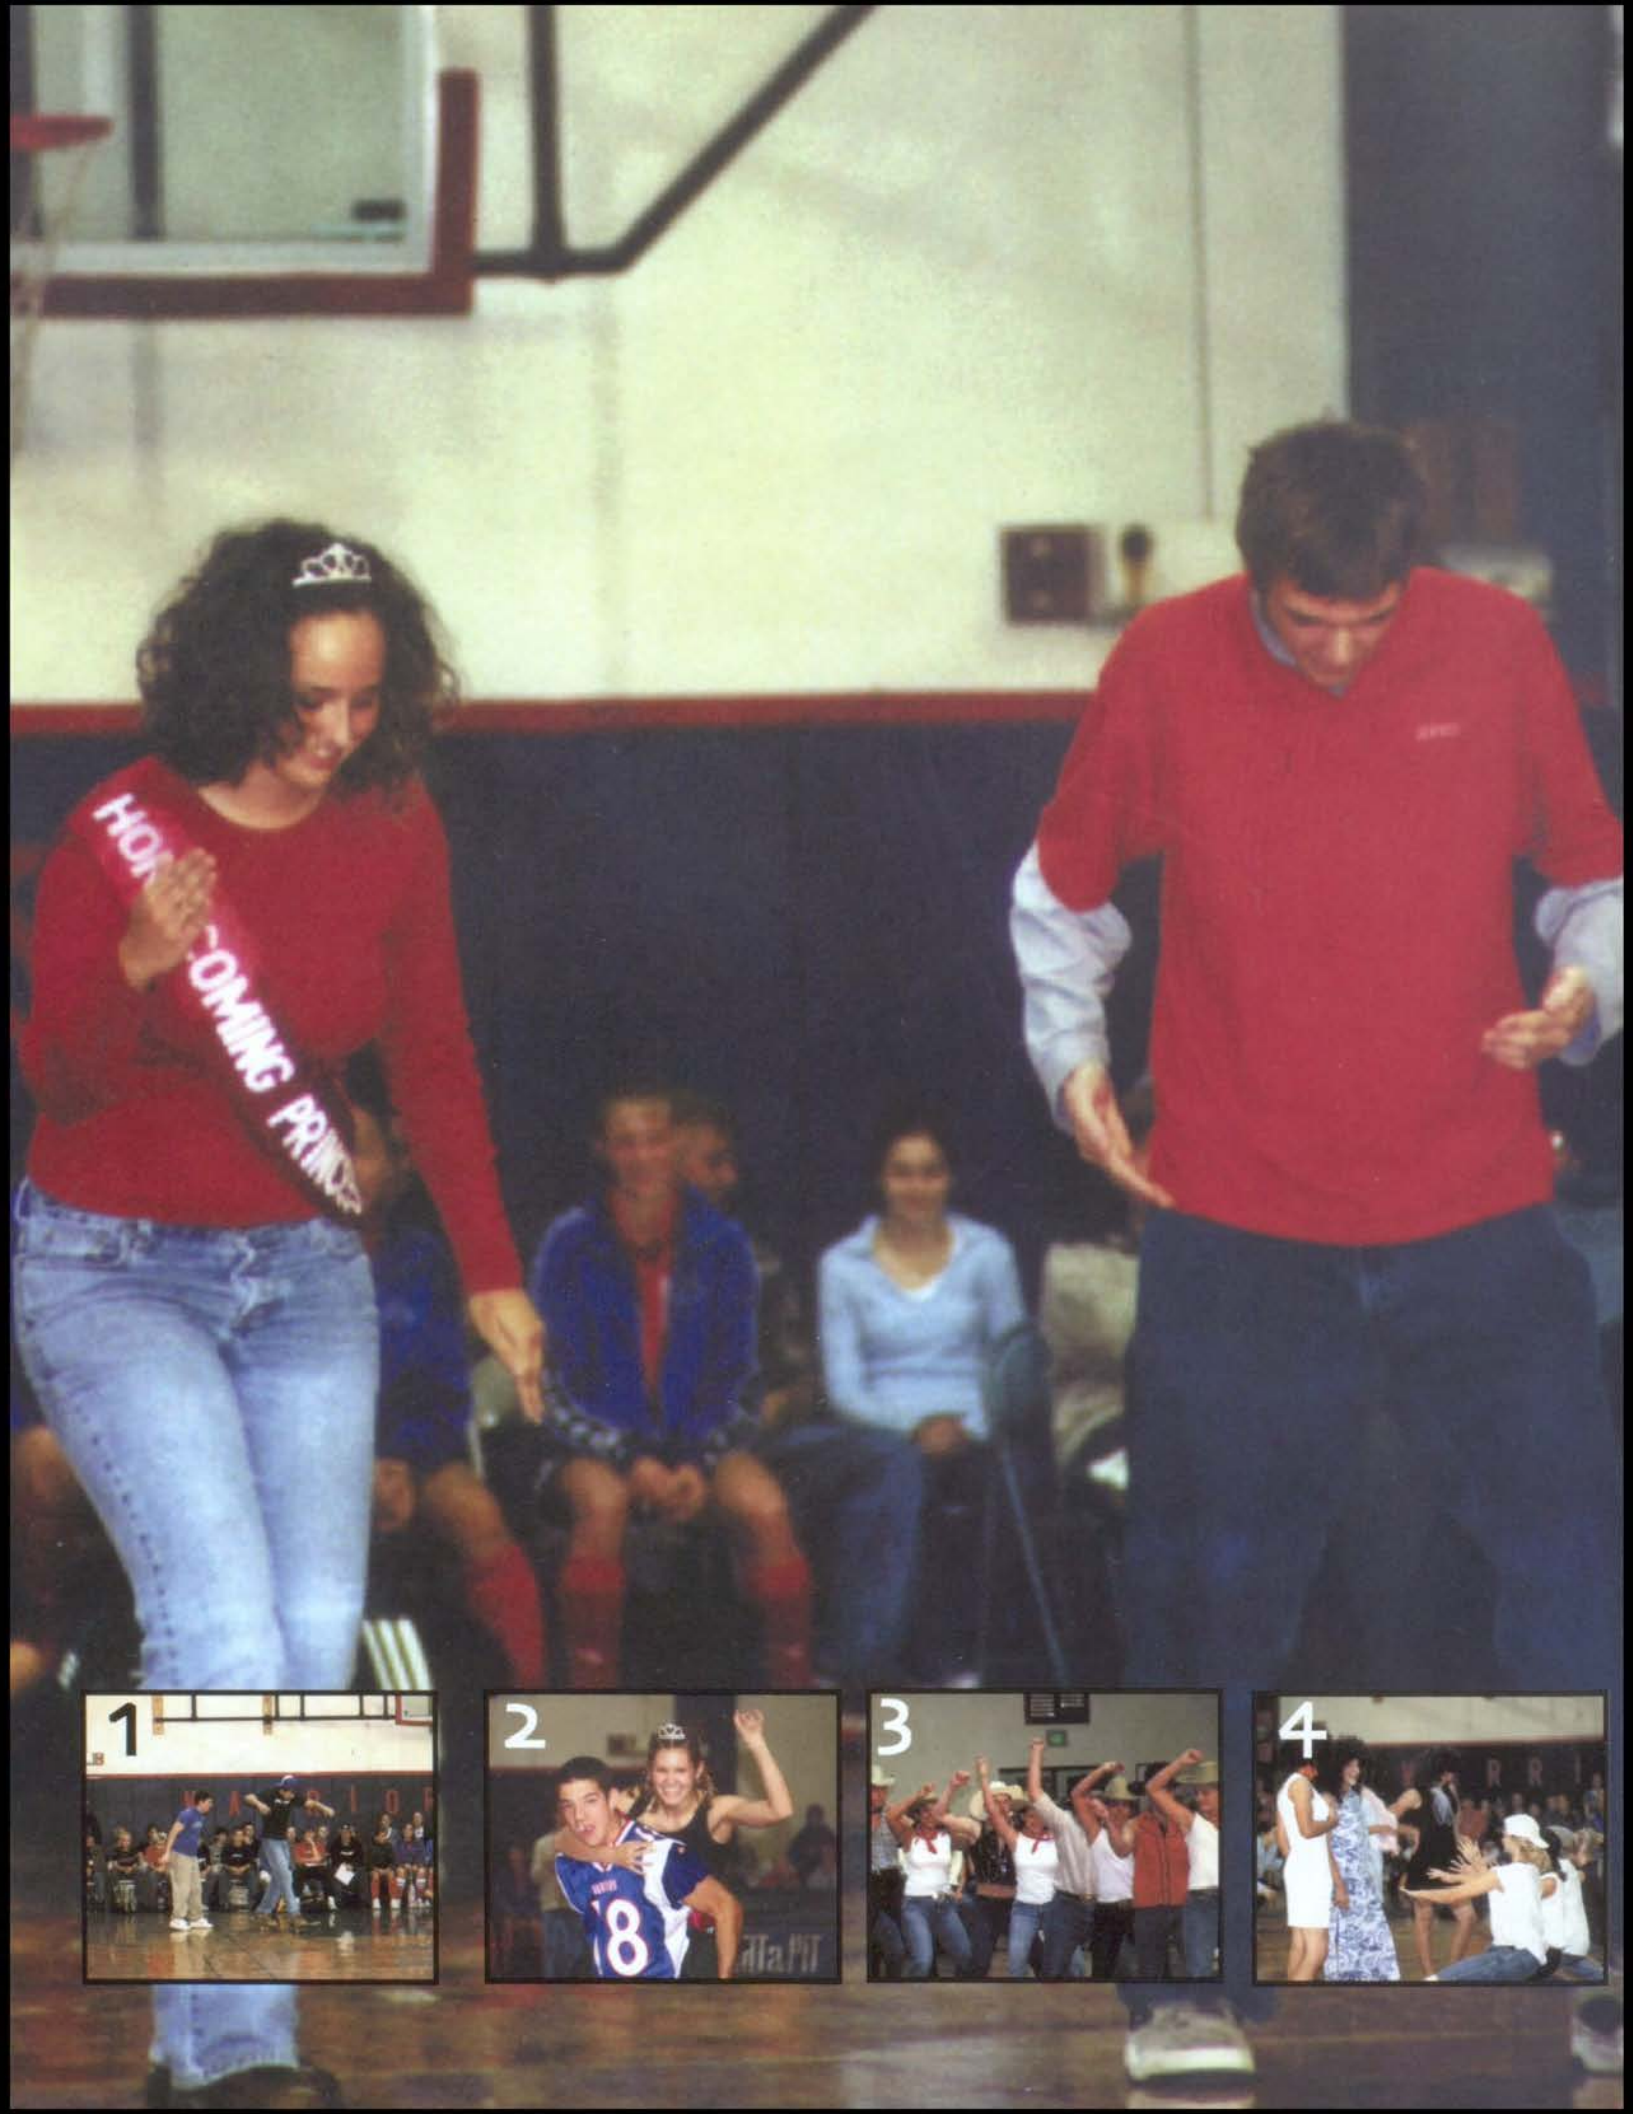

"After high school my plans would be to go into the military. More specifically, the Army, because it's always been a dream of mine. I look forward to the honor and pride of the service. The reason I've always wanted to join is because I want to make something of myself after high school and get out of Lebanon. The Army was always interesting to me because I look up to everybody that has served. I suppose you could say they are personal heroes of mine."

Brandon McClain, 11

"After high school, I plan to go away to college. I'm not sure if I want to stay local or go out of state. I will most likely work while going to college in order to help pay for the education. Unless I get an athletic scholarship for running, I would like to major in something in the medical field."

the busy days of school

Each September we begin a new school year. This year might have been our last, or it could have been our first. Either way, we had fun! At times, our lives were very busy and stressful; filled with teachers, homework and extracurricular activities. We all had good times with clubs, pep assemblies, games, and plays. Everyone had something they loved to do for fun. "I will always remember going to lunch with friends and having the best time of my life," commented sophomore Tina Boucher. This year our main goal was set high, "The best high school in Oregon," as Principal Kenneth Woody put it. That was our motto to go by, think about, and strive for. Though we may not have made it this year, we all contributed to the many changes that helped this school develop. Over the years we grow and mature, and with these years come important skills we need for the real world. At Lebanon High School we went through the hard times that taught us lessons, and prepared us for our futures. Out of the four years we were in high school, every year was different. We will always remember each year forever. One day we will look back and we will smile because these were some of the best times of our lives.

Unfortunately, they didn't win the competition, but they did put on a good show. 5 Sit and slurp, senior Michael Lewis sips on a Freezer while enjoying lunch with friends, seniors Lindsey Mitchell and David Meek.

The Beginning

The first week of school was a busy one. With the ending of summer and beginning of a new school year, along with a half hour time change, students finally adjusted and found balance. Freshman Orientation went well with upper upperclassmen and teachers working together to help the freshmen adapt to their new environment. The football team won their first two games, freshman experienced their first pep assembly, and everyone got their routines and classes down pat.

While our corner of the world was just starting to look a little better, a cloud formed over the East coast : A tragedy had arisen. Our generation will never forget September 11, 2001, a day of devastation in New York City and Washington, D.C. It all added up and brought hard times, but we got through it and grew stronger and closer together because of it. All that went on started us off with an overwhelming year, but now we are more united both as a school and as a nation. These first weeks created memories that we shared as a school, memories that can never be taken away.

Walk this way

in our new school for the first time many thoughts run through our mind. The freshmen toured through the school to find their classes making it easier for them on their first day of school.

Let's chat

juniors Katherine Breshears and Mindy Bloom lead their Connect group in a "getting to know you session," to help the freshman feel more welcome and get them involved. The leadership class put together small groups with upperclassman to talk and learn more about the school.

Look and listen

freshmen Danny Simon, Trever Aldrich, and Mary Warren listen attentively to one of their new high school teachers, as the rules of the classroom and school are given. "At the time what was going through my head was, this is going to be hard," commented Warren.

Throw your hands in the air freshmen Leonard Westphal, Chelynne Bowser, Brandi Polston, and Stephanie Shanks cheer loudly with excitement to show their school spirit. During Freshmen Orientation, the ASB and Connect leaders attempted to pump the freshman up with class cheers.

From the start, our ASB wanted to bring spirit back to the school. To do this they elected two activity directors, seniors Ian Smiley and Laura Logan. They brought back the spirit by making new and exciting changes. More class competitions, along with letting the DJ club bust out their skills for the dances were a few of the changes. Plus, having the new leadership teacher, Chris Allen, being open and ready to try new ideas from the students worked well. All these elements came together and made the pep assemblies just a little easier to deal with.

seniors Laura Logan and Sarah Aitkin run to hug each other as the pep assembly comes to an end. "Laura and I were really happy because everything went okay," said Aitkin. "Pep assemblies are always stressful because it is hard to get everything ready and still make it look good."

Dance until you drop

To move rhythmically to music, using prescribed or improvised steps and motions. To leap or skip around excitedly, to bob up and down. Prance, hop, clog, stomp, jump, shake, one-step, two-step or frolic whatever you want to call it: It's all dance.

This year our school dances were pretty successful since we had the DJ Club fronting them. After home football and basketball games, the dances were held in the student center. They all were put on for the same reason in mind: to let people come and enjoy themselves safely while having a good time.

Good times

sophomore friends Candice Bultina, Melissa Stanley, and Tina Milam dance together during the homecoming dance. "I enjoy the dances a lot and they are so energetic. The best thing about the dances this year is that everyone comes together who don't normally hang out and everyone has a good time," commented Stanley.

The week of Homecoming proved to be filled with tons of fun activities. Throughout the week ASB held noon activities. These games entailed sitting on ice while guzzling Slurpees to digging gummy worms out of applesauce. The princes were seniors Jake Ford, Richard Geil, Andy Pointer, Ian Smiley, Scott Stewart, Paul Walker, Ryan Warren, Joel West, junior Bud Hoover, sophomore Kevin Alley, and freshman Kenny Coakley. The princesses were seniors Linzi Stolsig, Jennie Oh, Amber VonCannon, Lesley Stiffler, Traci Price, Elisha Mullenix, Tiffany Campbell, Jessica Horner, junior Mindy Bloom, sophomore Kate Lindstrom, and freshman Maggi Hallock. The week was topped off by the Varsity football team playing against McKay on Friday. McKay beat Lebanon 35-34 making the final touchdown one second before the clock ran out of time. Seniors Richard Geil and Jennie Oh were crowned Homecoming king and queen at the game. The Saturday following the game the dance was held in the student center.

Midnight masquerade

Winter Formal was January 12th this year, and was held in the Willamette building at the Linn County Fairgrounds in Albany. The theme was Midnight Masquerade: Mardi Gras.

This year the Winter Formal court consisted of juniors, and the prom court of seniors. The 2002 king and queen of the night were juniors Brian Fahey and Ashley Adams. Princes were: Harland Allen, Andy Benneth, Nick Suing, Kyle Warren, Micah Cabrera, Ian Caster, and Andrew Wimer. The princesses were: Stephanie Madesh, Sharee Beckham, Ashley VonCannon, Callie Bennet, Melissa Buchheit, Ashley Arnold, and Mindy Bloom.

The formal has been held at the Elks Lodge in Lebanon in past years, but was held in the Willamette building this year so everyone who wanted to could attend. The building was rented for the night for $1,500, which raised the ticket prices $5.00 for each student. Many people found the room much more spacious, but cold.

Just the two of us

senior Travis Hood and sophomore Bethany Suderman glance around. "It was nice to have the dance in a bigger area, but my date was freezing the whole time, which made me feel bad," stated Hood.

Let's boogie

senior Jeni Ulm dances with date LHS graduate Nick Sheler. Students who brought dates from outside the school had to get permission from administration. "My dress was stabbing me, my shoes were squeezing me, and my mascara was running," stated Ulm. "I had a glorious time."

The look of love

junior Lacey Hellums and senior Kyle Robertson share a dance together to a slow song. "I think Winter Formal was great," commented Robertson. "I'm new here, and it's my senior year, dances are a lot more fun than I'm used to."

Fashion feathers

sophomores Brett Pyle and Melissa Johnstone enjoy a dance together. Feather boas were very popular this year, because of the Mardi Gras theme.

In the moment

the Winter Formal court stands up on the stage in front of the crowd to be crowned. This year every prince and princess was given a box with a balloon inside. Each contestant opened their box in hope that their balloon would be helium-filled and would rise to the ceiling, pronouncing them king and queen.

Royal dance

King Brian Fahey and Queen Ashley Adams dance together after being crowned. "Winter Formal of 2002 was by far the best dance yet," commented Adams. "Having the experience of being on court just made it all the more fun."

Surf the crowd

sophomore Sandi Springer strolls around the room showing off her Mardi Gras beads, and looking for friends to socialize with. "I thought the theme this year was great," stated Springer. "It felt original, which made it even more special; we were unique."

seniors Richard Geil and Juliana Galano shake to the music. Galano was an exchange student this year from Brazil. "I just loved formal. In Brazil, we only have formal graduation parties," remarked Galano. "Everyone was so beautifully dressed, and the decorations were nice too. I'll never, ever forget this formal."

Royalty Week, held the week of Valentine's Day, brought out massive amounts of love amongst the students of Lebanon High School. Each day of the week had it's own theme. Monday was Relaxation Day, Tuesday was Wacky Tacky Funky Crazy Day, and Wednesday was Oldies Day. Thursday expressed Valentines love with Red, White, and Pink Day and Friday topped off the week with Formal Day.

Each day had a noon activity in the student center. Games such as drawing hearts with a pencil in your mouth to playing Name That Tune were thought up by the ASB for these activities. The King and Queen of Valentine's Day was announced on Friday, February 15th, at the dance. It was announced that the King and Queen was Raymon Ebbs and Laura Logan. The freshman class was represented by princess Evangelina Santana and prince Corey Hollaway. Sophomores had princess Nia Franzwa and prince Cameron Anderson. The junior class had princess Lindsay Ciullo and prince Tom McKellar. The seniors were proud to have princesses Carla Estes, Kristin Giddings, and Laura Logan and princes Raymon Ebbs, Brian Nelson, and Matthew Wimer.

Mr. LHS is a program where male seniors compete to win the title of Mr. LHS. This fundraiser sends all the proceeds to the pre-natal care unit at Sacred Heart Hospital in Eugene. The men are nominated by teachers, and then the ballot is sent to the students to determine the contestants for the competition. From there, the men plan for the night of the contest, getting ready in all the areas of judging.

This years contestants consisted of Benjamin Alfonso Crawford-Medina, Harold Richard Geil, Jessie Lee Hankins, Grant Thomas McHill, Ian Read Smiley, Scott Carlisle Stewart, Ryan Duane Warren, Joel Preston West, and Paul Andrew Walker.

Ben Crawford-Medina stands at 5'10," he is president of Key Club, in Generation Life, STARS, International Club, SADD, football, track, and church activities. "It feels good to know that I was voted on by my peers. I'm a little bit nervous about being on stage, but this is going to be awesome."

Herald Richard Geil stands at 5'5," is in Jazz band concert band, newspaper, and has his own band "The Rumhounds" along with working at Mama Linda's. "I had entertained the idea [of being on Mr. LHS] but not seriously. I think people see something in me, whatever that may be."

Jessie Lee Hankins stands at 5'10," is involved with football, STARS, and Search and Rescue. "[I think I was chosen] because of my personality and attitude toward others. Grant Thomas McHill stands at 6,' is involved with STARS, football, basketball, baseball and National Honor Society. "Yes, [I wanted to be chosen] it was a dream of mine."

Ian Read Smiley stands at 6'6," plays basketball, track and is apart of DECA and ASB. "I expect a lot of fun and good memories." Scott Carlisle Stewart stands 6'3," and is in drama, newspaper, Poetry Club and Honor Society. "I reacted like a monkey who had just been whipped with a banana [when I found out]."

Ryan Duane Warren stands at 6'2," and is in National Honor Society, football, wrestling, track, and Search and Rescue. "No matter what . . . I'll be happy to have experienced this great competition." Joel Preston West stands at 6'2," is involved in STARS, Honor Society, the Perfect Attendance band, along with skateboarding. "[Being apart of Mr.LHS] is cool, it's a good way to end high school, but it is a little overwhelming 'cause there is a lot to get done."

Paul Andrew Walker declined to comment on his measurements. He is involved with karate, drama club, drafting club, tennis, National Honor Society, and is a basketball coach. "It could have been my charming smile, or perhaps my stunning good looks, but I think it's just because I'm a nice guy," commented Walker.

Zebul on Ernest Cortese stands at 5'9," is involved with track and Search and Rescue. "I was shocked [when chosen] . . . [the competition] will be fun, with such a mix up of different guys."

This years choice of guys was very diverse and made for a great competition.

Senior Pam Leibrant was involved in many things in the school and around the community. In the school, Leibrant was involved as ASB President, in STARS, Key Club, and Site council. "I hope to meet people in the community," said Leibrant. She also looks forward to going to the grade schools and talking with students.

Senior Abby Mance looks forward to getting to know the other girls on the court. Mance was involved in leadership. She plans on going to Western Oregon University and majoring in law enforcement and FBI. Mance thought she was a good candidate to be on court because she is a good person and feels she could make a difference in the community.

Senior Vanessa Ray was involved in SMART, Generation LIFE, DECA, and leadership. After graduation she plans to go to OSU and major in business. Ray looks forward to being more involved in the community while on the court. "When I found out that I had made the court I was in total shock, I couldn't believe out of all the girls who tried out, I was one of the girls that was chosen. It was such a privilege," said Ray.

Senior Maria Samoylich was involved in National Honor Society, volleyball, basketball, softball, drama, and choir. After high school Samoylich plans to go to OSU and study pharmacy. She hopes that being on the court will be a great experience. "When I found out that I had made the court I was in my car and I was so excited that I was almost in an accident so I had to pull off the road," said Samoylich.

Senior Lesley Stiffler thought being on Strawberry Court would be an awesome experience and it would be something new. Stiffler was involved in National Honor Society, basketball, volleyball, Key Club, and STARS. "I was really surprised because there were a lot of applicants this year and the top ten were awesome girls with all different backgrounds and I'm just me, so I was really surprised," said Stiffler.

the People everyday routine

In the years to come we will remember the times we spent in this building with these people. Maybe you'll remember that boy who cracked jokes at the back of Science class or the girl who knew all the answers in your math class. Of all the countless faces you saw in the hallways, you'll remember something about at least a few of them.

Some of these people will not return next year, others may have a year or two left. In reality this is only the beginning. For some, college is the next step. For others jumping into your adult life is the way to go. Regardless, the point is to remember the good times you had and never forget them. Keep your old notes that you passed to your friends in Kerry Wells' English class. Enjoy the time you have left with your friends and be glad when you see them tomorrow.

Through our entire high school career we may lose touch with some friends but they will not be forgotten. The following pages will show the people you remember: From staff to students, or teachers who might have impacted or changed your life in some way. Cherish these moments and memories because you only have one chance to live them. This is your life, this is your reality.

1 New kids on the block, the freshman class joins Lebanon High School to give a shout out at the pep assembly. In some of the pep assemblies the freshmen proved to be the loudest of all the classes. 2 Full of spirit, Lebanon's class of 2004 cheers as the sophomore Homecoming prince Kevin Alley and Homecoming princess Katie Lindstrom are announced. 3 Junior power, the juniors stomp their feet and shout out their spirit during the class competitions. The school spirit has really increased during pep assemblies thanks to the effort of the leadership class. 4 One more from the seniors, the seniors come together to cheer for their class. During the pep assemblies the leadership students organized competitions for classes to compete against one another. The seniors were determined to show the school which class was the loudest. 5 Students root for the home team, juniors Lavenda Nettles and Stefanie Pool, and seniors Kayla Trumble, Traci Price, Vivian Tan, and Amber VonCannon attend the first varsity football game wearing players jerseys. The girls wore the jerseys to support their friends who played during the game. The varsity team won the game against Corvallis 30- 12.

"My most memorable events were of the fun I had in the material science class," Matt Cawrse, 12

"The one thing I will always remember about high school would probably be my friends. I was pretty much friends with everyone but my immediate group will always be in my memory," Jennifer Ernst, 12

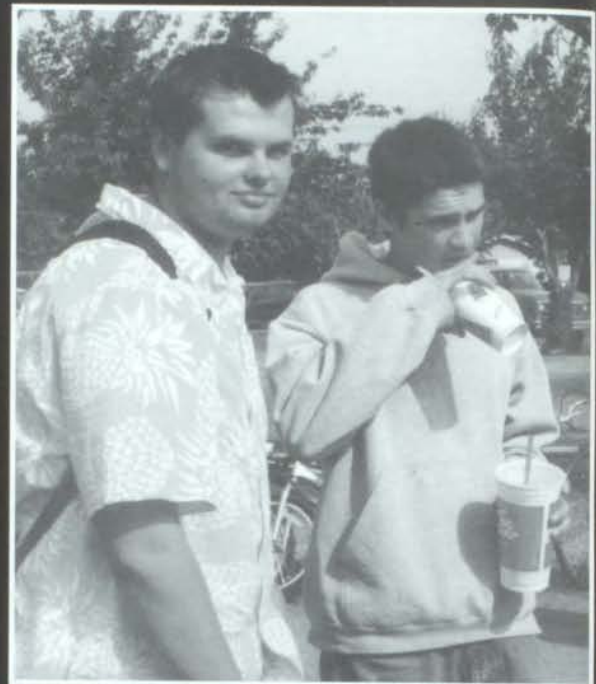

"I am always going to remember the glitter fight I got in with Laura Logan in Chris Allen's Economics class, and how I was finding glitter in unimaginable places for the next week," Anita Thompson, 12

"My best years in high school were my junior and senior years because I met my fiancé, the love of my life, Jonathan Andrew Ader," Rebecca Ogbin, 12

Time to eat

seniors Igor Malkovsky and Sergey Galuza take time out of a busy day to enjoy a nice fall lunchtime. Lunch was 40 minutes long, giving students enough time to use their privileges to leave campus for lunch.

All play, no work

seniors Warren Drainville, Rachel Snook, and junior Carlie Chaput enjoy a relaxing lunch at the side entrance of the school. Many students spent early fall lunchtimes outdoors to soak up the last of the sun for the year.

Take a load off

senior Erik Rivera-Lugo sits for a moment between classes. With four 90 minutes classes a day, students often felt they earned their 10 minute passing time.

Foreign Exchange Students

Yoko Otsuki

Moe Asano

Juliana Galano

Charlotte Blum

Imagine you are 3,000 miles away from your home. Would you be sad, or maybe a little scared? Foreign exchange students faced this each year. This year we got the chance to meet eight wonderful young women from Japan, Germany, New Zealand, Brazil, and Italy.

Isabelle Karstendiek was from Achim, Germany. Karstendiek's favorite experience while staying in the United States was being in the Homecoming Powder Puff football game, even though she found the rules for football difficult to understand. Also, math was difficult because in Germany the measurements are metric and here they are English.

Kumi Tanaka was from Hyuga, Japan. Her favorite experience was shopping. A big difference she saw while staying in Lebanon was how students talk while at school. The most difficult thing she experienced while in Lebanon was speaking English.

Emily Tubman was from Masterton, New Zealand. Her favorite experiences while staying in the United States were when she went to Los Angeles, Disneyland, and a Mariner's game. Differences she noticed were how large our school is and that we do not wear uniforms. "It was really difficult to make friends when I first arrived," commented Tubman.

Yoko Otsuki was from Kyoto, Japan. The most memorable experience for her was going to a Mariner's game. One thing she noticed was that in the United States, people give hugs and kisses to family members and friends and in Japan those actions are only given to one's significant other.

Moe Asano was from Yokohama, Japan. Asano enjoys the way American's emotions change so quickly. She came from a Christian girls' school, so Lebanon was a big change for her. Trying to speak and understand English were the most difficult obstacles for Asano.

Simona Saluzzo was from Turin, Italy. Swimming in the Pacific Ocean was really memorable for her. The biggest difference for Saluzzo was the food. "It is much more fattening," said Saluzzo. The most difficult things for Saluzzo were getting along with her host brother and speaking English.

Juliana Galano was from Sorocaba, Brazil. Her favorite experiences were watching football and attending the Homecoming game. The biggest difference Galano noticed was that her home town has 500,000 people and Lebanon has only about 13,000.

Charlotte Blum was from Hanover, Germany. Blum's favorite experience was shopping. "Being in Lebanon was difficult to get used to because you have to drive to go places," remarked Blum.

Snack time

junior Brittany Hensley buys a snack from the cafeteria during lunch. Soda pop was banned from being sold in the cafeteria or vending machines this year, so students were left with their choice of various flavors of juice. George Geizler's marketing classes were still allowed to sell soda in their student-run store.

Time to chat

freshmen Lindsay Gamble, Allison Grenz, and Stephanie Read take time to talk during their lunch in Freshmen Hall. Many students chose to eat in the halls rather than the cafeteria or student center because of the crowds that come with having a small school and so many students.

Sports

your reality is...

into it*

Sports were a chance for students to come together and be a team. "It's working together with others to make everyone better. A team works together as an individual; where if one person is slacking, the whole team hurts," stated senior Collin Cordoza.

"Sports has taught me dedication, hard work, team work, and heart," said sophomore Sandy Springer.

"Sports in a general sense teaches self discipline, motivation, and gives them a good work ethic. They also help a person's confidence by a sense of achievement that is felt after a good day," commented Andrew Wimer.

Being part of a team means a lot of different things to a lot of different people. "To be a team means to be supportive of each other, and encourage each other to do better and work harder," said freshman Brett Haines.

1 Time to run, junior Steven Siewell grabs the ball and heads down the field for a touchdown. Unfortunately, he was taken down by the opposing team. 2 A stroll through the park, senior Jeremy Branson begins to breath heavily as he comes around the last turn at a Waterloo meet. Overall, Branson had a good season. He placed 24th at districts. 3 Spike, senior Heather Hollaway spikes the ball to gain a point at a home volleyball match. Lebanon dominated to take the win. 4 Swim on, junior David Johnson wrestles around for the ball at a water polo game. 5 Head rush, senior Dennis Zhiltsov ricochets the ball off his head before crashing into an opponent at an early season soccer game. Even though the team gave it their all, they ended up losing by a close score of 2 to 1.

freshman Zach Rose makes the kickoff for the game to start. The freshman guys worked together to make a good team.

Let's go girls

seniors Collin Cordoza, Brady Hallock, Scott Stewart, and Paul Walker cheer for the senior girls in the Powder Puff game this year.

Can't touch this

freshman Keith Truett holds tight to the ball during a game against McNary. Truett played as both a kicker and a tight end. The freshman team had an awesome record, having lost only two games.

Take it for the run senior Tiffany Campbell darts down the field with the ball in hope of a touchdown, while junior Tiffany Buckmaster runs after her. Campbell really pushed herself during the game and made two touchdowns for the senior team.

Touchdown!

senior Rachael Broderick makes a touchdown during the powder puff game. "Powder Puff was so much fun!" commented Broderick. "The seniors did awesome!"

Can't touch this

junior Ross Wopat runs the ball as fast as he can while the opposing team quickly approaches. With a new coach this year and a strong team there are hopes that next years season will be a good one.

Back off

junior Juan Martinez struggles to keep the opposing team away from the ball as he heads for the goal. This can be the most violent part of the game.

Come get it sophomore Ryan Triglia tries to steal the ball from a member of McKay's team while he is being held back. There was a great struggle for the ball.

Focus on the ball junior JJ Macedo concentrates on getting the ball to the goal. He had a clear path to the goal until the other team caught up to him.

Watch out

junior Juan Martinez kicks the ball towards the goal while team members from McKay protect themselves from getting hurt by the ball. The task right now is to get the ball into the goal.

Take a shot

senior Yuriy Samoylich runs along side team member Aaron Riutzel during the game against McKay High School. This was the game the team needed to win in order to go to the state competition.

Take the ball and run junior Tiffany Buckmaster runs the ball towards the goal while the opposing team tries to steal it. Rushing to the goal appears to be the most difficult part of the game.

Watch out

home schooled student Elisa Bowen fights for the team as the opposing team works to steal the ball. The team continued to improve as the season went on.

Run for it home schooled student Alysa Bowen receives the ball and runs for the goal. The overall season was one of growth and learning.

In for the steal home schooled student Alysa Bowen tries to keep the opposing team from gaining access to the ball. "We started our season a little rough, but with the help of our new coach we grew close and had a lot of fun," commented senior Maryann Stanko.

Off the head junior Tiffany Buckmaster and sophomore Jackie Cordoza watch to see where the ball will go. This season was a time to learn things to improve next year.

In the air junior Tiffany Buckmaster jumps into the air to gain control of the ball. The team was young this year, which holds a lot of hope for a good season next year.

Race to steal

junior Micah Kauffman follows the opposing player carefully waiting for a steal. The soccer team had an overall record of one to eleven and also had one tie.

Bounce off the head junior Kyle Collins tries to hit the ball over the opposing team as freshmen Neil Fantus, Igor Galuza, Thomas Nunnery, and sophomore Andrew Shipuk stand by.

Across the field

freshman Thomas Nunnery prepares to kick the ball down the field. Nunnery is a homeschooled student playing on the Lebanon team.

Tackling the other team junior Robert Burns struggles to steal the ball from the opposing team. "I've played soccer for two years," said Burns. "Even though we didn't win much I think we all improved. We had some great coaches who really wanted to help us learn."

Here they come home schooled student Shae Parker runs to the ball to keep the opposing team from gaining access. There may not have been very many wins this season, but with the skills learned this year the young team should have great games next year.

A fight for the ball freshman Carly Shanks puts up a good fight as the opposing team tries to steal the ball. This season was a great year to grow in skills with the team's new coach Jonah Lang.

Stroll through the park

junior Micah Cabrera runs through a field in Waterloo park.

"Contrary to popular belief, flexing really hard during your race not only allows for greater speed but also makes a better impression on the ladies" stated Cabrera.

Around the corner

sophomore John Baretto races around the corner down on the Santiam River bank in Waterloo park. All of the home meets were held at Waterloo Park .

The end is near

sophomore Sara Silverman runs her hardest as she comes upon the end of the race. "The part that I like most about cross country was my team mates and how they helped and inspired me" replied Sara Silverman.

The end is near freshman Evangelina Santana races the opposing team at Waterloo Park. For Evangelina's first year of cross country she placed well in many of the meets.

Strive hard freshman Alex Barreto comes down along the stretch in Waterloo park. Barreto increased his times in every meet.

On the go

the cross country team takes off in a rush. The overall team has done well every year. Lebanon has always managed to send people to state.

Keep it up senior Nick Swanson keeps a good pace while running in Waterloo at a home meet. Swanson placed in the top 20 at this meet.

Three-point shot

sophomore Mike Hibbert gracefully shoots the ball with no opposition from the visiting team. Though we did not win the game, the points Hibbert scored helped our team keep up.

Moon jump

junior Zach Hagemeister gets hyped for a game against South Albany with his teammates. Team introductions were a great way to get pumped up in the pre-game time.

I can do it senior Nick Swanson drives towards the basket. Swanson has played basketball since his freshman year, and is also involved in Honor Society.

Here I am
junior Bud Hoover maneuvers around the opposition looking for someone to pass the ball to. Hoover had a good season.

Take a shot

senior Grant McHill makes the jump shot from the right side of the hoop at a game against the South Albany Rebels. "We were always joking around," said McHill "It was what kept us loose throughout the season." "It was a great experience to play with these men, and I will always remember Drew George's game winning shot against Sprague."

senior Ian Smiley, avoiding a South Albany Rebel guard, decides who he wants to pass the ball to in order to gain the team some points. Smiley was also involved in various clubs in the school including ASB and STARS.

junior Stefanie Pool gets into squatting position to obtain maximum height as she is shooting the ball. Pool is also involved in various activities in and out of school.

Listen up

Steal the ball

senior Kellie Griner protects the ball from opponents as she turns to make a score. Griner was one of the key players on the varsity team this year.

coach Karlynn Akins motivates and gives her players on the court advice to hopefully help them gain more points. Akins coached her team to a winning game.

In for the score

freshman Chelsea Hartman rises above the rest as she avoids interception, and takes the shot. The points she scored helped the team to a winning game.

Get out of the way

senior Kellie Griner rushes past the opposing team with ease to shoot and score as the visitors sit and watch, not being able to do anything about it. Griner had one of her best seasons this year.

Take a chance

Take your best shot junior Chad Shafer takes a shot for the hoop while being guarded by four of the opposing team members. This is Chafer's second year on the JV team. He also played as a freshman.

Anticipation rises
Coach Roy Humphrey sits on the bench with the JV team watching with anticipation as his team takes the floor against South Salem.

Pass it up junior Tom McKellar passes the ball to a teammate during a game against South Salem. "We had a good season. The team worked together and made the season great" said McKellar.

sophomore Cameron Anderson takes a shot at the hoop while being blocked by a South Salem player. Anderson had a good season as a starter. He managed to score points for the team at almost every game.

JV men's basketball team:

Shot to the hoop

Strong guard

freshman Brooke Scofield guards her opponent as they race down the court. "My favorite part of the game is "D" defense," commented Scofield.

Scramble for the ball

freshman Jenny Nordstrand fights to steal the ball from her opponent. "It's taught me to major the minors, and to be a real team player," stated Nordstrand.

Across the court

freshman Hannah Sherman dribbles the ball down the court as West Albany players race to catch her. "Basketball is not a sport that you can only try when you want," replied Sherman when asked her feelings about the season. "Sweat plus sacrifice equals success," said Charles Finley."

freshman Ashley Ogle positions herself to make the shot as freshman Stacy Heyne guards the opponents from West Albany. "Playing on a high school team has taught me a lot about working as a team and never giving up," remarked Ogle.

as the announcer says "Take your mark," the swim competitors step up to the block and prepare to leap into the water.

Set

sophomore Kaitlyn Stevens dives in the water, as the light flashes. "We have this tradition in the girls locker room," stated Christine Nair. "We do an annual slip and slide across the shower floor."

sophomore Elise Hickson jumps in at a meet against McNary. "When I think back on this season, the thing I will remember most is singing in the showers after practice," commented Melissa Buchheit. During one practice we sang "Little Mermaid" songs until Jeff, our coach, threatened us.

junior Daniel Sherman performs the breast stroke at a routine meet. "During winter break, one quarter of my time out of every day was spent swimming," comments Sherman. "Whenever I sweat, it smells like chlorine, so it doesn't stink."

Play keep away

the Crescent Valley player goes after Lebanon to steal the ball. The opponent was unable to reach it and Lebanon threw the ball in to score a goal. Unfortunately, we didn't take the win home.

Tip off

the LHS and Corvallis men teams go head to head as they reach for the ball. Both teams were very aggressive in the pool but Corvallis came out with the win.

Nice try junior Jennifer Beach grabs the ball after West Albany chucks it toward the goal. Both teams were very aggressive but Lebanon came out with the win, a smashing 23 - 1.

It's a stretch

sophomore Michael Franklin defends his goal as the other team tries to score. This year the team was very enthusiastic, and they all had fun at the matches.

Dance to the music

In dance, one wrong step may effect the whole team's performance where as in basketball or soccer, your teammates can catch your mistakes and pick up the ball. That's why practices every evening (and occasionally mornings) are so important in perfecting not only routines but social skills. Having these skills makes a good team because you are able to be in sync with other members.

Strike a pose

sophomore Danelle Ogle, of the JV dance team, dances along with the rest of her team during an assembly near the beginning of the school year. This year the JV danced at West Albany with Varsity in the novelty category in which they placed third.

Can't touch this

senior Jessica Horner performs with the Varsity dance team at an evening football game. "The past four years on dance team have been totally awesome," commented Horner. "I have had so much fun being captain this year and I'm going to truly miss all of the girls and especially [our coach] Joann so much next year."

your reality is...

Clubs & Academics

Your reality was to get involved from your freshman year until the day you graduated. So what did we get involved in?

We had clubs like Drama where you expressed your creative side through acting. Or perhaps you volunteered your time to the community through Key Club.

Maybe you chose to learn how to make your own business, so you went to DECA meetings.

Maybe you wanted to express yourself by reading poems with Kerry Wells and other students in Poetry Club.

Did you play an instrument? Were you in Marching band, Jazz band, Concert band or choir?

Did you build something in Electronics this year? Or did you write for the warriorspirit?

No matter what you did, there was always some class, club, or activity to fit your personality.

Senior class officers:

Clockwise from top: Treasurer/Historian Jennifer Coffman, secretary Sara Haines, co-Vice President Kayla Trumble, co-Vice President Justin Van Patten and President John Reuter. Senate worked on the creation of the school constitution this year. This was a big task. They had to find out what was important to the school. From there they voted on the bills they wrote. Senate also organized senior class meetings and helped out behind the scenes with pep assemblies. "I hope to bring many ideas and positive influences to senate so more people will want to join senate next year," said co-vice president Trumble.

Junior class officers:

Callie Bennett, junior class president. Not pictured: Tiffany Campbell and Rebekah Schroeder. Junior class president Callie Bennett felt that "being part of senate made her feel important, knowing that she was a link between the students and the administration." As part of the senate they helped with dances, pep assemblies and senior meetings. Being on senate was a good experience for everyone on it. It was good practice for working with people in a structured environment

Man in charge

Chris Allen, the ASB adviser, explained that "Senate was a class where there's a structured Parliament system where officers voted on bills and issues going on in the school." This year the ASB and Senate worked out a new voting system where the school would be more involved in the election process. This year the senate worked on some bills that will get more people involved next year. They are making more clubs and more after school activities.

Heather Hankins, sophomore class president. Not pictured: Callie Brown. Hankins responsibilities were to vote on bills and proposals and help make decisions with the ASB leaders. When she was asked "Why did you become part of the senate?" she replied, "I wanted to make a difference not just in my class but the whole school." She spent her time being involved in STARS, youth group, and the high school reconstruction committee.

The officers of the Associated Student Body raised our spirits this year by helping to organize fun events. This job wasn't an easy one and that's why their unity with one another was important. They worked as a team and united the school.

Senior Pam Leibrant was the president of the ASB. Her goals were to improve school spirit and make activities more fun.

Senior Collin Cordoza was the vice president of the ASB. He wanted to be part of the ASB so he could make some changes in the school. He was involved in Football, Key Club, DECA, DJ Club, and Leadership.

ASB Secretary, senior Sarah Aitkin, enjoyed tennis and bike riding. Aitkin's plans for the school were to unite the student body, fill us with school spirit, and instill us with pride.

Senior Rosa Park was the treasurer. She wanted to be part of the ASB so her voice would be heard. Her goal was to get a Saturday dance club started here.

Senior Laura Logan was the spirit coordinator. She wanted to be more involved in school and raise school spirit. Her goal was to let every one realize it's okay to be yourself.

Senior Ian Smiley was the ASB activities director. Smiley joined ASB so he could make the senior year fun for everybody.

Club Representative George Reuter wanted to help change the school. He was involved in drama club and he golfed. "I want to make a unified school with more spirit," commented Reuter.

Senior Elisha Mullenix was in charge of public relations. She wanted to be involved because she enjoyed politics. Her goal was to unite the students and make high school a better experience for everyone.

Christine Nair was the executive board historian. She wanted to be an officer because "it was such an awesome way to be involved." Nair was involved in many clubs including Key Club, Drama, Forensics, Honor Society, and STARS.

Tomorrows leaders

A time to come together

every Friday at lunch in the choir room a large group of students gather together to talk about their week, and how they can make a difference around the school and in peoples lives.

Every Friday at lunch Generation Life met in the choir room. They gathered together to talk about their week, to sing songs, and just come together and celebrate their faith. "Generation Life is a great club," stated Katherine Jeffers. "It's awesome that we can witness the change in people around the school, also to help them when they are having a hard time," commented Tiffany Campbell.

Innocent hearts

Students Today Aren't Ready for Sex, commonly known as STARS, was a vigorous program that trained high school students to teach sixth grade students about postponing sexual intercourse until marriage. All of the members went through training at a retreat, and learned all possible outcomes while being in the classroom full of sixth graders. Every member in STARS was required to be very dedicated to the program and be good role models for the younger eyes looking upon them.

Press in the making

As the days come and go, memories are made as others fade. Throughout the year, the publications crew had the opportunity to record memories forever. The warrior spirit Newspaper Staff recorded the years events so well they earned the title as the best high school newspaper in Oregon, and the only one to go to the National competition. From the hair styles you wish you never had to the class clown who always made you laugh, those were the memories that were your reality. Whether you were a rookie or a veteran, the experiences were yours forever.

adviser Sandy Graham looks at the picture chosen by the yearbook staff to assess the quality of the photo to ensure that it will look good in the yearbook. Graham left in October leaving the publications classes to get to know their new advisor Mark Whitson.

Close-up Government was advised by Steve Speth and Lynden Brown. Close-up was a year round class that allowed students to take a trip to Washington D.C. to further study the things they learned in class. This opportunity was optional for all students, as the cost of the trip was around $1500.

Discussion time

seniors Angela Stevens, Jennifer Coffman, and Jasmine Winchell get into the classroom discussion. Close-up was a very vocal class, in which the students had many chances to express their opinions and views.

Advanced Government is made up of two classes meeting first and fifth periods. Sharon Little's classes are made up of students who have completed applications which she reviews selecting the students who meet her requirements. The class period is filled with activities centered around discussion and debate. Advanced Government is fortunate because they have Guest speakers who enlighten the class on various topics and are required to attend public gatherings such as school board meetings. These experiences helped the students to become involved and informed citizens.

All eyes forward seniors Lesley Stiffler and Julia Evans watch the front as the days editorial cartoons are displayed. Each day the class analyzes editorial cartoons and gets a chance to discuss a few. The editorial cartoons allow the students to see political expression through art.

Pay attention

seniors Kristina Aikin and Alex Masog tune their eyes to the TV as Channel One begins to broadcast. Channel One notes are to be taken every day for a later quiz. Notes from Channel One are also incorporated into class lessons.

Pencils sharp

seniors Miranda Tucker and Grant McHill take notes on Channel One. Every class day started with viewing and discussion of the current news and events.

FFA, Future Farmers of America, ran throughout the whole year, and was advised by Charlie Clingenpeel. The FFA officers this year were President Rueben Davidson, Vice President Teri Rush, Secretary Amber Barnett, Treasurer Amy Durling, Sentinel Brandon Herb, Historian Ryan Allen, and Reporter Anne Aldrich. FFA does many activities, such as tractor driving competitions, soil judgments, crop judgments, livestock judgments, and competing in the Linn County Fair. FFA has one awards banquet a year, which is held in May.

Come together

FFCLA stands for Family, Career and Community Leaders of America. This group of talented students get together and talk about different projects they plan to work on throughout the school year. This includes volunteering at the soup kitchen along with community clean ups. They also compete in state competitions plus they take part in an awards banquet that rewards "The power of one" award. They contributed many hours to the school and our community.

DECA, Distribution Education Clubs of America, was advised by George Geiszler, and ran throughout the whole year. The DECA officers this year were President Ian Smiley, Vice President Collin Cordoza, Secretary Vanessa Ray, and Treasurer Stephanie Madesh. DECA is in charge of the Warrior Trading Post, in extension of Geiszler's room, open before school, in between classes, and during lunch. They have many competitions in marketing.

“Drama is life.” This was the anthem of many drama students, including senior Scott Stewart. When an actor participated in drama classes, the drama club at lunch, and attended the after school rehearsals everyday, one began to realize that drama truly is life. Drama gave students a chance to improve their acting skills and publicly express themselves through the characters they reflected. “I have a strong feeling that because of the drama program here at LHS, I will continue to love the theater after high school,” commented Scott Stewart.

Unexpected call junior Kyle Warren receives a phone call as senior John Reuter watches during the fall play. Each year the drama department performs two plays and student directed one acts.

National Honor Society was made up of individuals who showed exceptional abilities to keep their grade point average above a 3.5 and participate in at least two hours of community service a month. To be in Honor Society was a great privilege to everyone involved because it is a nationally recognized program. This year the group had an astonishing number of students, the largest the school has ever had, 35 juniors and 64 seniors.

Voices to be heard

To speak or not to speak. That is exactly what the Forensics team did. If you have the gift of speaking then the Forensics team is for you. The forensics team, commonly known as the speech team, attended several tournaments and competitions. On average they attended at least one tournament a month. The members of the team have the option of taking prepared speeches, unprepared, or debate. Over the last four years, the speech team has grown from a mere four members to about eight members.

"Wanna mess with me?"

seniors Scott Stewart and John Reuter have a little fun while debating about how they did not like that Drama club, Speech team and National Honor Society met on the same day. They were a little stressed about getting to all the meetings on time.

Problem solving seniors John Reuter and Scott Stewart work with sophomores Peter Barish and Jay Markello to make final corrections on a speech for one of their competitions.

Hard at work

forensics adviser Anne Wittwer works on correcting a speech for an upcoming forensics tournament. Wittwer also teaches six classes.

Tension arises

sophomores Jay Markello and Peter Barish debate corrections being made on their speech by seniors John Reuter and Scott Stewart. In the end a decision could not be made, the speech was thrown out.

Electronics is divided into four classes: beginning, linear, digital, and advanced. Each class focused on an array of topics. They learn basic electronic troubleshooting, design techniques, and programming chips. This year the Robotics Club reevaluated its goals and began anew. They will focus on robotics and eventually compete.

DJ club began this year, taking on all of the dances and pep assemblies. The group performed for the Winter Formal and was a welcomed part of the event.

Words from the soul

Poetry Club met every Wednesday at lunch in Kerry Wells' room to share their writing and talk with one another. For many, Wells' room created a comfortable environment to sit down and relax in. Students involved in Poetry Club usually were or had been a part of one of Wells' Language Arts classes.

The Poetry Club took a field trip to the Portland Art Museum in December, and visited Powell's Book Store.

What to do, what to do senior John Reuter clears his lenses as he ponders the world around him. Poetry club is a place to go and let your emotions and feelings out in poetic form.

Stand still junior Kayla Nissen, freshman Danielle Hall, juniors Kelley Claborn, and Rachel Kropf group together during a meeting to chat privately. Aside from a chance to share poetry, the meetings also gave the opportunity for socialization.

Work in progress juniors Carey Blackburn, Justin Rowan, and Kelley Claborn join in the groups discussion during a Poetry Club meeting. Adviser Kerry Wells often kept a captive audience at these meetings.

In discussion

freshman Danielle Hall, Kerry Wells, and senior Scott Stewart talk about a trip to Ashland to experience a play. They decided on going to see either Hamlet or Macbeth. The costs of the trip were also discussed.

Making short films and 30-second ads was the name of the game this past year in Kerry Wells' Video Productions class. Video Productions was the stepping stone to Broadcast News. The main difference between the two classes was in Video Productions you create short films rather than news segments. In Broadcast News they went out and grabbed the important information around the school and turned it in to video segments for announcements.

Sing loud and proud

The lovely voices of Lebanon's concert and select choir filled the auditorium with music. Both choirs were led by Roger Mitchell. The concert choir was the beginning choir for new members. You needed to audition with Mitchell before you were allowed to take the select choir. Each choir sang at four concerts during the school year. One of the biggest performances was the winter concert where the jazz band, concert band, marching band, concert choir, and select choir perform.

"A" major job

choir and band director Roger Mitchell takes attendance as the class files in to begin class. Mitchell works with both choirs and all of the different bands. "I think the choirs are growing," says Mitchell. "It's a really great thing to see."

Sing together

the select choir works on their songs for the upcoming Spring concert. Roger Mitchell listened to a variety of young students prove their singing skills during auditions. Each student had to sing a scale on the piano that Mitchell played.

Tenors and basses sophomore Chas Johnson, junior Alex Rauch, senior Gary Flowers, and Junior Paul Santana sing tenor and bass for the select choir. The choir in the past has had a shortage of guys but this past year brought in many new faces.

The sounds of the warm-up squeaks of the band added anticipation to the beginning of many school events. The field marching band and fall guard were a regular part of the halftime show at home football games, pep assemblies, and home basketball games and succeeded in pumping spirit into students, despite the groups small size.

The jazz band could be heard practicing in the band room during first period. Competing around the Northwest, they earned much-deserved praise.

Ads

Through the long years that Lebanon's "The Warrior" yearbook has designed books for the students and community, we've needed ads to help support us. For the past few years businesses such as Canaga Tire, Floor Krafters, The Lebanon Police Department, Korner Kitchen, Bing's, and Tony Hayden's Aloha Photographic Studio and Gallery have supported our yearbook. To these businesses we would like to give special thanks. We would also like to thank the businesses who most recently joined in aiding our school. Thank you to all who have assisted us through the past year. Your support has helped us through yet another year of this thing called life.

1 Dusty streets, downtown Lebanon seems quiet during school hours. The old buildings remain, with many businesses coming and going. 2 Now playing, Lebanon's old movie theater no longer shows movies. The theater now serves as the communities local concert venue. 3 Spirit of a nation, a lone flag stands on the edge of Main Street. After the frightening terrorist attacks on Sept. 11, 2001, many people displayed flags from their porches, cars, and businesses. The attacks have brought out the spirit and unity of the United States. 4 Green light, a minivan waits patiently at the light in front of the old theater. Many new street lights were put in and most recently a street light was placed at the 5th and Oak street intersection. 5 Home of the Warriors, for years before most of us can remember, LHS has been here. Some students who attend LHS had parents, grandparents, or other family members who also attended this school.

Laura Logan and Anita Thompson's Senior Year - Full of "Good Timez"

My Anita Darlin'
 I dreamt of an angel with soft gentle eyes
 So perfect and beautiful
 Who once put her tiny fingers in mine
 And helped me know I had purpose

I dreamt of an angel, who's smile makes
 My heart lift, and my troubles melt away
 And all else's lives she meets, she captures.

I dreamt of an angel who puts the light of God first in her life and everyone else before herself

 I dreamt of an angel who stood strong For all she believes in
 And always ready to lead

I dreamt of an angel who's proud Of who she is
 And is confident in the choices

Who cares passionately about almost everything

I AWOKE FROM THIS DREAM AND SAW YOU
 My how you've grown my angel
 With all my heart
 Mom

Dear Laura,
 My how the years have flown by, you have blossomed into such a wonderful young woman. I have always been so proud of you.

Life is a journey and you are well on your way. I know whatever you choose to do in life you will succeed. Your bright, beautiful smile has often lit up my life on a bad day and I thank you for that. Never be afraid of a challenge, always question authority, love and live life to the fullest, and most of all be happy my sweet girl.

All my love,
 Mom

Dear
Amanda,

We are so very proud of you. Stay true to yourself, do your best, and trust in God to do the rest.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and David

Tara,

You've been a joyful addition to our family. Best of luck.
We love ya.

Class of 2002
We'll always be proud of you!
We miss you and love you-
Mom, Dad, and Tyler

Some people come into our lives and quickly go. Some people move our souls to dance. They awaken us to a new understanding with the passing whisper of their wisdom. Some people make the sky more beautiful to gaze upon. They stay in our lives for awhile, leave footprints on our hearts, and we are never, ever the same.

In loving memory of Jeremiah "Bud" McBride

Jeremiah "Bud" McBride was born July 17, 1983, the son of Michael McBride and Annette Fuller. He enjoyed skate boarding, camping, and making his own home videos. He is remembered and will always be missed.

John "Logan" Branam, Wade Brown, Casey Jones, and Samuel Wilson

A group of young men taken from this earth too soon. They will remain in our hearts eternally.

Departed this world January 13, 2002

I have had the wonderful experience of being raised and growing up with you, my friends and family. As I move on from this moment to a new and exciting life, I thank you for all the love and support you have given to me. I look back on my life thus far and am overwhelmed by how so many lives and stories are intertwined to create my very own.

-Ashley

Congratulations Traci

We are proud of you!

*Love,
Dad & Mom*

Thankz 4 being so cool, u all rock and I hope u all have a great time in the real world too! -Kent Elliott

I remember those crazy nights during yearbook paste-ups. I really enjoyed this year and I hope next year will be even better. -Rachael Hayes

To the "Perfect 10," What's the B.S.? Memories! This year was full of memories. I am thankful I was able to work with such a wonderful staff and adviser.

Jennie, I am going to miss working with you; I hope I can fill your shoes and do a good job as Editor; Whitson, I look forward to working with you next year. -Lucie Reck

"your Reality is..." is the 70th installment of the Lebanon High School yearbook. The theme was thought up by Carla Corbitt during the previous year. The book is 8.5" x 11" and printed by Herff Jones on 80# Bordeaux Special paper. The staff used Adobe PageMaker 6.5, Adobe Photoshop 4.0, 5.0, and 5.5 to create the yearbook. Our headline font was Textile, our copy and caption font was Skia, and our specialty font was Bellevue. We produced a 192 page book with a 16 page supplement, making a total of 208 pages and printed 900 copies, at $45 each, or $50 after December 7.

The Warrior yearbook staff would like to thank our Herff Jones representative, Bill Dubé, for all of his help and for planning a retreat together. It's been great working with you, Bill!

The yearbook staff would also like to thank our adviser, Mark Whitson, for coming in during the middle of the year to take charge. And to our old adviser, Sandra Graham, for the years of great leadership she gave to us. We wish the best for you at your new school!

Thank you for the slumber/paste-up parties, buying us pizza and Chinese food, and always letting us pick on you.

And seniors? We'll miss you guys. Especially our wonderful Editor-in-Chief, Jennie Cramlet, for the never-ending happiness and fun she brought to our late-night festivities. We love you, Jennie! And for anyone we missed, you know who you are..."The Perfect 10" staff thanks you so much! It was a great year!

Yearbook has given me the opportunity to meet new friends and learn new skills. I love this new family and I wish everyone the best of luck next year and the rest of their lives. I will never forget the time we've spent together and the laughter we've created. -Ashley France

To all of the yearbook staff: "By George, we've done it!" We made it through the year and all those late-night paste-ups, pizza and Chinese food, you guys are awesome. -Rachel Oeder

Another great year gone by, and another great staff. Thanks for making it... well, interesting, and very enjoyable. I love you girls like sisters (and Kent a brother) so I'll miss you. Whitson, you were a welcome addition to the "Perfect 10." -Sara Tracy Spending every school day for the past year with these people has definitely been an unforgettable experience, from early morning off-the-wall conversations to crazy 3 a.m. paste-ups, we all put a big effort into the book. So along with getting an awesome yearbook, I'm leaving with 10 great friends. -Laura Logan

To all those yearbookians, past, present, and future, enjoy the crazy late nights, pizza, Chinese food, and great friendships formed here in Room 70 - the memories will last forever but the times won't. To the remains of the "Perfect 10" staff: Good luck and don't forget to keep Whitson under control! -Jennie Cramlet

This year has been so awesome on yearbook! Thanks for all the crazy times, and all the laughs, guys! Laura - thanks for having the ability to make me laugh through the stressful times. You are all like my second family, and I love you all! -Hilary Karr

Fortune cookies, paste-ups, check-ins, and deadlines. Wonderfully insane students - my source of daily sanity. Thanks to all 10 of you for your kindness, laughter, trust, and support as I became your "Adviser."
-Mr. Whitson

This has been a really good year. It has really brought out my personality and my opinionated side. I will always remember "boots," Sheena! -Laurie Plagmann your reality is...

Closing

As we come to the end of the school year of 2001-2002 we take time to look back on the friends and experiences that made this school year different. We say good-bye to the seniors and prepare to welcome the incoming freshman. The seniors prepare to depart for college or start their adult life and the rest of us move on to another year at Lebanon High School.

Through many of the hardships we've faced this year, from losing friends, to losing that big football game, we've grown and matured. We remember that lecture Steve Speth gave in his American Studies Social Studies class and listening to Penny Steele talk about the food chart in Health. Your reality is your life and how you choose to live it, and the people and places in it. All the new faces you have seen and have yet to see are ahead of you. Enjoy the years spent here because you only live them once. We leave this closing to all who care to read and hope this year was a memorable one.

1 Spiker, junior Lindsey Gay goes up for a spike during a JV volleyball game. The volleyball team pulled off a good season, coached by Paul Kurtz. 2 Water slap, a group of water polo players make a grab for the ball. Water polo brought in a variety of players from different classes. 3 Suck them dry, senior Holly Davis waits patiently for the blood-letting procedure to be over. The Key Club hosted two blood drives this year, one in the fall and one in the spring. 4 Swim time, seniors Matthew Wimer and Christine Nair slide across the gym floor in swim garb during a pep assembly. This years pep assemblies were packed full of great class competitions and hilarious skits. 5 Don't drink and drive, senior Amanda Sperle and a local fireman help senior Collin Cordoza into a wrecked car in preparation for the SADD drunk driving skit. SADD put on a heart-wrenching real-life skit on the track and football field about what happens when a wreck is caused by a drunk driver.
